Faith in Politics? Rediscovering the Christian Roots of our Political Values Richard Harries

New edition of this acclaimed book, published ahead of the 2015 General Election. With increased suspicion of our politicians and a sense of alienation from those at the top there is a crisis in British democracy. Here the former Bishop of Oxford and life peer Richard Harries addresses our concerns by re-examining the roots of our political values. He considers the various strands of thought that have had a bearing on political philosophy over time, such as utilitarianism and liberalism, and argues strongly that a Christian perspective has a distinct part to play in the shaping of our life together, and that rediscovering this perspective can help towards building a better society. This new edition is updated for the 2015 context and includes an immediate response to the result of the Scottish referendum on independence.
