Julian Darrow of Darrow Industries has done very well for himself. His kind of success attracts competitors, so he isn't surprised when a beautiful young woman is hired to break into his research facility and steal his latest project. She thinks he's an arrogant billionaire. But really, he is far more cunning than she could ever believe, which is why he has no problem setting a trap for her.

After successfully breaking into his home and filching a single manila envelope, Natalie is just about to get away when her curiosity gets the best of her. She peeks inside, and a puff of gas hits her right in the face. Before she knows it, she passes out.

And when she wakes up, Julian Darrow has her caged. Although she attempts to negotiate, Julian tells her exactly what he wants. You see, he is trying to change the world, and he knows that wealthy men all across the world would be willing to pay dearly for the chance to control their girlfriends and wives. That's why he is developing a single microchip.

This tiny wafer will be fixed to the back of her neck, and once it activates, it will start to influence her behavior. It will make her feel childish. As her personality changes, it will be harder for Natalie to speak and think like an adult. And most importantly, it will turn her into his private plaything. Natalie has been on the hunt for this chip, except now she's going to get far closer to it than she ever imagined.

Natalie will be his first test subject. And when he proves his technology works, she will become his demonstration model.

To truly rob Natalie of her independence, he said strips her down, he diapers her, he put her hair in pigtails, and he brings in his associate, a young woman named Sasha to oversee her training. Under the watchful gaze of both Julian and Sasha, Natalie doesn't stand a chance. But that doesn't mean she's about to give up...Even if every act of resistance means another spanking, another indignity, another punishment...
